According to Jackson Area FCU's Vice President of Lending/Member Relations, Donna Wade, her credit union signed with CU Members Mortgage because it made the lending process a very easy experience. The credit union has been looking to offer a simple mortgage lending solution to retain members and attract new ones, as well.

"We've had quite a few members lately asking for mortgage loans, so we acted on recommendations from other credit unions to look at CU Members Mortgage," says Wade. "With their easy-to-use mortgage lending solution, our goal is to serve our members by meeting these needs – and mortgage services are something they have been requesting. Our ultimate hope is to enhance the value of our credit union with these services so it will become our members' primary financial institution."

According to Tri-Rivers FCU's Manager/CEO, James Dill, previous mortgage programs didn't work well for the credit union and they were quite costly. Tri-Rivers subsequently signed with CU Members Mortgage to give it an advantage to securing more mortgage loans from its membership.

"With today being such an ideal time to refinance or purchase a new home because of low rates, we felt this was a good time to partner with a quality mortgage services provider," says Dill. "Member satisfaction is very important to us and the website with the mortgage application is very user friendly and accessible 24/7 – all of which plays into serving our members well. As a result, our profitability numbers in this area should increase exponentially."

"Obviously, we are very pleased to have our new partners join the CU Members Mortgage family," states Linda Clampitt, Senior Vice-President of CU Members Mortgage. "More importantly, however, these signings represent the beginnings of many members achieving the dream of owning a home, while continuing to spark the lending business for credit unions. This is great news for both credit unions and consumers."
